INCIBE'S RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS

INCIBE reserves the right to change any of its conditions if technical reasons or other circumstances beyond its control prevent the event from proceeding as normal.

INCIBE reserves the right to interpret and amend these Terms and Conditions and the specific terms governing associated activities. In such cases, the revised terms and conditions for the event and its activities will be communicated through the same channels as these terms, with sufficient advance notice and publicity, without giving rise to any entitlement to compensation for participants or interested parties. INCIBE also reserves the right to annul or cancel the event.

INCIBE may declare an activity void if participants fail to meet the requirements.

The use of the event's or Organiser's logos, trademarks, image, name or similar identifiers on any medium, in communications, on social networks or social media, or in traditional media is expressly prohibited without the Organiser's prior express consent. The Organiser reserves the right to take any legal action available to it.

ATTENDEES' RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS

Anyone attending and/or participating in any of the activities held at ENISE must:

The event Organisers will exclude any participant who breaches the above, without prejudice to participants' liability for any infringement of third-party industrial and intellectual property rights. Participants shall bear sole responsibility for such infringements and shall hold INCIBE harmless at all times.

Without prejudice to the above, participants will in all cases retain the ownership and copyright to which they are legally entitled over content submitted or developed during their participation in 20ENISE.
